

The Oxford Internet Institute: Travel Instructions

The Oxford Internet Institute is located at 1 St Giles in Central Oxford. This is just a 5-10 min walk from the Oxford railway and central coach (Gloucester Green) stations. A more detailed map of central Oxford can be found at:

Travelling by car

We do not recommend travelling to the Institute by car: parking is difficult to find in Central Oxford and the Institute is located in a restricted traffic area. Visitors are encouraged to use the frequent 'Park and Ride' bus services which operate between the city centre (with stops within 5-10 min walk of the Institute) and parking areas on the outskirts at: Peartree and Water Eaton (North), Thornhill (East), Redbridge (South) and Seacourt (West). Maps and timetables are available on the 'Park and Ride' website.

Travelling from London (Paddington) by train

There is an hourly (half-hourly at peak times) First Great Western Trains service from Paddington railway station to Oxford, which takes ~1 hour. Fare prices and booking are available online (note that it is cheaper to travel after 9.30 am).

Travelling from London (Victoria) by coach

There are two coach services connecting Oxford and London. They both run every 15-20 min during the day (30-60 min during evening and night) with a journey time of ~1.5-2 hours. Timetables and maps showing other pickup/drop off points in London are available from the websites of the bus services.

The Oxford Tube coach service leaves from just outside Victoria railway station (Grosvenor Gardens bus stop).

Travelling from overseas

Oxford is well connected to the London airports by coach, however, there are no direct train services. We recommend that overseas travellers fly in to Heathrow: the Heathrow-Oxford coach link is the quickest airport bus service to Oxford.

Heathrow airport to Oxford: the X70 Citylink Airline coach to Oxford departs from the Heathrow Central Bus Station (for Terminals 1, 2 or 3) and from Terminal 4. Buses run every 30 min with a journey time to Oxford of ~70 min (90 min from Terminal 4).
