Overview of the role

Reporting to the Principal Investigator, the post holder will act as a researcher of the Fairwork Foundation. Tasks will involve developing fair work standards, research with workers and platforms, organising meetings, liaising with external partners and stakeholders, disseminating findings in the media, and general outreach about the project. The Researcher will primarily focus on the Fairwork Foundation's work in the United Kingdom and Germany, with additional opportunities to be involved in other focus countries for the project.

Pre-employment screening

All offers of employment are made subject to standard pre-employment screening, as applicable to the post.

If you are offered the post, you will be asked to provide proof of your right-to-work, your identity, and we will contact the referees you have nominated. You will also be asked to complete a health declaration (so that you can tell us about any health conditions or disabilities so that we can discuss appropriate adjustments with you), and a declaration of any unspent criminal convictions.

We advise all applicants to read the candidate notes on the University's pre-employment screening procedures, found at: www.ox.ac.uk/about/jobs/preemploymentscreening/.

Responsibilities/duties

- Doing primary and secondary research and drawing on our existing research in order to evaluate platform companies against principles of fair work.
- Regularly liaising with project stakeholders.
- Disseminating the 'fair work' rating criteria in collaboration with the PI and project team.
- Collaborate in the preparation of research publications, chapters, summaries, and reports.
- Investigate and analyse wider issues shaping platform work in the United Kingdom, Germany, and elsewhere in the world.
- Small scale project management and the co-ordination of multiple aspects of work to meet deadlines.
- Represent the research group at external meetings/seminars, either with other members of the group or alone.
- Prepare regular update reports to the funder and other collaborators.
- Disseminate findings in the media.
- Leading efforts to maintain a constant public profile (blogs, social media, short reports, etc.)
- Managing the project's stakeholder relationships.
- Leading in the organisation of workshops and an international conference about fair work.
- Assisting the team as we expand Fairwork to other countries.
- Other duties as may be required by the PI.

Selection criteria

Essential

- Hold a relevant postgraduate degree in sociology, geography, anthropology, economics, political science, law, or related fields.
- Academic or professional experience related to the gig economy, platform work, the digital economy, decent work, or precarious/temporary work.
- Ability to manage own academic research and associated activities.
- Previous experience of contributing to publications/presentations.
- Excellent communication skills, including the ability to write for academic and non-academic publications, present research proposals and results, and represent the research group at meetings.

- Ability to organise complex sets of information, and develop granular work schedules.
- Experience coordinating a diverse set of stakeholders.

Desirable

- Experience studying platform work in the United Kingdom or Germany.
- An interest in understanding obstacles faced by platform workers.
- Experience of independently managing a discrete area of a research project.
- Experience of actively collaborating in the development of research articles for publication.

About the University of Oxford

Welcome to the University of Oxford. We aim to lead the world in research and education for the benefit of society both in the UK and globally. Oxford's researchers engage with academic, commercial and cultural partners across the world to stimulate high-quality research and enable innovation through a broad range of social, policy and economic impacts.

We believe our strengths lie both in empowering individuals and teams to address fundamental questions of global significance, while providing all our staff with a welcoming and inclusive workplace that enables everyone to develop and do their best work. Recognising that diversity is our strength, vital for innovation and creativity, we aspire to build a truly diverse community which values and respects every individual's unique contribution.

While we have long traditions of scholarship, we are also forward-looking, creative and cutting-edge. Oxford is one of Europe's most entrepreneurial universities. Income from external research contracts in 2016/17 exceeded £564m and we rank first in the UK for university spin-outs, with more than 130 companies created to date. We are also recognised as leaders in support for social enterprise.

Join us and you will find a unique, democratic and international community, a great range of staff benefits and access to a vibrant array of cultural activities in the beautiful city of Oxford.

Social Sciences Division

The Oxford Internet Institute is a department within the Social Sciences Division, one of four academic Divisions in the University, each with considerable devolved budgetary and financial authority, and responsibility for providing a broad strategic focus across its constituent disciplines.

The Social Sciences Division represents the largest grouping of social sciences in the UK. It is home to a number of outstanding departments and to the internationally ranked Law Faculty; all are committed to research to develop a greater understanding of all aspects of society, from the impact of political, legal and economic systems on social and economic welfare to human rights and security. That research is disseminated through innovative graduate programmes and enhances undergraduate courses.

The Oxford Internet Institute (OII)

The Oxford Internet Institute has expanded rapidly since its founding in 2001 to become a world-leading centre for the multidisciplinary study of the Internet and society, with activities focusing on research, post-graduate teaching and policy-making and practice.

The OII aims to bring about a greater understanding of the various social factors that are shaping the Internet and their implications for society. Central to this vision is a view of the Internet as a phenomenon that goes far beyond its technical capabilities to encompass all the people, services, information, and technologies that are intertwined in this 'network of networks'. Excellence in research underpins the Institute's collaborative and teaching activities. Wide-ranging collaborative relationships with experts from academia, government, business, and industry in the UK and around the world also play a central role in its strategic drive.

The OII's research strategy has targeted areas critical to the public interest, where the design and use of the Internet and related technologies are likely to contribute to a substantial restructuring of social practice and institutional arrangements. Having developed critical mass in these areas, the OII's strategy for the next five years is geared towards deepening and extending the range of grant-funded research around each theme and disseminating the outputs in high-quality journals, while ensuring that research helps inform and shape policy and practice.

Research at the OII focuses on 8 research clusters:

- Connectivity, Inclusion & Inequality: understanding the shifts in the power dynamics caused by information and communication technologies.
- Digital Knowledge and Culture: charting the on-going digital transformations of the sciences, social sciences, arts and humanities, and their implications.
- Digital Politics & Government: investigating political behaviour, digital government and government-citizen interactions in the age of the internet, social media and big data.
- Education, Well-Being and Digital Life: addressing the psychological, social and educational implications of the Internet, for people of all ages, across the full lifespan, with a particular focus on children and young people.
- Ethics and Philosophy of Information: investigating the ethical, epistemological, logical and ontological aspects of information, its sciences, phenomena and dynamics.
- Internet Economics: understanding the economic and social implications of new business models, new market structures, and new types of economic activity.
- Information Governance & Security: analysing the challenges created by the digitisation of information, seeking solutions through new governance rules, processes and institutions, and investigating the relationship between emerging technologies, their design, and information security and privacy.
- Social Data Science: seeking a quantitative understanding of how individuals behave and interact in society.

In all its research, the OII aims to operate at the cutting edge in both quantitative and qualitative methodologies that cut across disciplines and topics. Methodological innovation is vital given the changing nature of the Internet and advances in ICTs which both necessitate and facilitate the development of new techniques. OII researchers are developing methodologies such as the embedding of ICTs for real time observation of social phenomenon; webmetric techniques for observing the underlying structure of the web presence of social institutions; artificial intelligence design; experimental research; on-line action research; content analysis; investigation of virtual environments; and online survey research.

The University's policy on retirement

The University operates an Employer Justified Retirement Age (EJRA) for all academic posts and some academic-related posts. The University has adopted an EJRA of 30 September before the 69th birthday for all academic and academic-related staff in posts at grade 8 and above. The justification for this is explained at: www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/end/retirement/acrelretire8+/.

For existing employees, any employment beyond the retirement age is subject to approval through the procedures: www.admin.ox.ac.uk/personnel/end/retirement/acrelretire8+/.

There is no normal or fixed age at which staff in posts at grades 1–7 have to retire. Staff at these grades may elect to retire in accordance with the rules of the applicable pension scheme, as may be amended from time to time.

Equality of Opportunity

Entry into employment with the University and progression within employment will be determined only by personal merit and the application of criteria which are related to the duties of each particular post and the relevant salary structure. In all cases, ability to perform the job will be the primary consideration. No applicant or member of staff shall be discriminated against because of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage or civil partnership, pregnancy or maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation.

Benefits of working at the University

Employee benefits

University employees enjoy 38 days' paid holiday, generous pension schemes, travel discounts, and a variety of professional development opportunities. Our range of other employee benefits and discounts also includes free entry to the Botanic Gardens and University colleges, and discounts at University museums.
